Rev. G. Black Called Down at Vancouver Meeting.

(Special to the Times.)

Vancouver, Oct. 31.—Rev. Geo. Black, the visiting Orangeman, created a sensation last night at the Conservative meeting when referring to the Alaskan settlement, he said that Canada should mind her own business and not bother with affairs on the other side of the Atlantic. He said the disputed territory was of no use to anyone, and if the Americans wanted it so bad, better let them have it. The chairman called Rev. Mr. Black down, saying this kind of advice had been heard before, and reflected how little the Old Country people knew or cared for Canada.

ELEVEN KILLED IN RAILWAY WRECK

MANY OF INJURED NOT EXPECTED TO RECOVER

Several Members of Football Team En Route to Play for Championship Among the Dead.

(Associated Press.)

Indianapolis, Oct. 31.—The special train on the "Big Four," bringing 945 Lafayette passengers, including several hundred students of Purdue University, was wrecked today near Riverside Park at the edge of this city. Eleven dead have been taken from the wreck and forty passengers were injured, twenty-four of them seriously. Among the dead are several members of the Purdue University football team, which was playing Indiana University for the state championship here this afternoon.

The list of dead thus far identified follows: F. J. Robertson, Indianapolis; Walter B. Rouch, Pittsburg; L. E. Rush, Pittsburg; H. J. Howell, Corpus Christi, Texas; Sam. Smith, Lafayette; W. B. Hamilton, Huntington, Ind.; J. Hamilton, Lafayette, Ind.; Gabriel S. Drollinger, behind; Jas. Coates, sub-player; W. H. Gable, Butler, Ind., sub-player; Walter Farr, Corpus Christi, Texas, sub-player.

Some of the killed and injured were members of the football team, including Capt. Osborne and W. H. Leslie, captain of last year's team, both of whom were seriously hurt.

The special train bore the Lafayette route, numbering nearly 1,000. It consisted of twelve coaches and was running as the first section at high speed. At a gravel pit switch, near Eighteenth street, a switch engine with a couple of coal cars collided with the passenger. The passenger engine and first three coaches were almost totally destroyed. The first coach was crushed to splinters, the second telescoped and thrown down an embankment fifteen feet high, while the third coach was overturned and thrown across the track.

There is confusion as to what caused the accident, each engineer insisting that he had the track and did not know of the other train. A deep cut prevented a clear view of the track. The crash of the two trains threw the coal cars through the first two coaches in which were many of the players and substitutes.

Under the pile of debris were fifty or more students of the university. The injured in the coaches hurried to the aid of the victims. The work of pulling out the victims was continued by the students and passengers, including many girls from Lafayette, until surgical help arrived. The hospitals and surgeons came rushing up in automobiles and carriages. Ambulances and special vehicles for taking away the dead and injured were hurried to the wreck. A large force continued tearing away the debris and removing the bodies.

The condition of some of the dead was frightful. One body was entirely beheaded. Others were terribly mutilated. Two of the dead, the Hamilton boys, were brothers. One lived at Lafayette and the other at Huntington, Ind.

WRECK OF COAL

New Seam Encountered Near Western Fuel Company's No. 1 Mine.

(Special to the Times.)

Nanaimo, Oct. 31.—The Western Fuel Company has been rewarded for its expensive development work at the southern extremity of No. 1 mine by striking a seam of ten feet of excellent coal, giving to those workings a new lease of life and demonstrating the inexhaustible resources of the local mines.

At the new slope at Departure Bay water stopped work for a few days, but pumps have ended the trouble and terminated the alarmist reports in circulation.

THE SANTA FE WRECK

Pueblo, Colo., Oct. 31.—Every effort of special officers of the Santa Fe railroad and of the sheriffs and police in southern Colorado is being directed towards the apprehension of the persons who wrecked the Santa Fe flyer at Alamosa bridge early on Friday morning, and killed 159 passengers for the purpose of robbery.

ment, he said that Canada should mind her own business and not bother with affairs on the other side of the Atlantic. THE QUESTION OF THE BALLOT BOXES

ATTORNEY-GENERAL EXPLAINS POSITION

He Regards the Statute as Inadequate, But Claims That He is Powerless in Matter.

All the members of the cabinet will be in the city this evening, when the question of filling up the ministry will likely be disposed of.

In connection with the Ferme election matter, Attorney-General McPhillips, in an interview with the Times, has given his side of the question. He contends that in the matter he has introduced nothing of a political nature. His action has been based upon the proper administration of his department, and the carrying out of the statute of the province. The Elections Act, he frankly admits, is at fault. It will require amendment to make it workable, and to avoid clashing with respect to some of the provisions. The present government is not responsible for the act, however, and the law must be administered as it is found.

As far as his knowledge of the matter is concerned, an expert application was made on behalf of E. C. Smith before Mr. Justice Irving. The Supreme court judge granted an order for the production of the ballot boxes. Acquainted with this fact the attorney-general sent a message empowering Mr. Macdonald, on behalf of the provincial secretary, to appear before His Lordship requesting the order to be rescinded. This was done, and Mr. Justice Irving, on having his attention brought to other sections of the act, rescinded the order.

The attorney-general points out that the ballot boxes are in the custody of the deputy provincial secretary. That officer would very justly refuse to deliver these up to any order except that of the Speaker of the legislature, or the Supreme court, or a judge of that court. The purposes for which they should be ordered produced are clearly set forth as being for institution or maintaining of a prosecution, or for a petition questioning an election or return. The government has no more power than any private individual. Mr. Reddie, the deputy provincial secretary, must very rightly refuse the government's access to the boxes.

The purposes for which a Supreme court judge could order the boxes produced did not include that of a recount before a judge, as provided for in the amendment of 1896. Moreover when the latter amendment was made a provision was also provided whereby the custody of the boxes passed from the registrar of the Supreme court to the deputy provincial secretary, and in doing so the various sections in which these names were altered were specifically mentioned, and included this very one in question. The legislation was therefore virtually re-enacted upon this point, and precluded the delivery of the boxes for purposes of a recount.

Above all this the duty of the returning officer is clearly set forth in the act with respect to forwarding the boxes immediately upon conclusion of that officer's count or recount.

Even had the returning officer been notified of the intention to ask for a recount before a judge, it is a question whether under that provision he could do other than immediately send the boxes forwarded to the deputy provincial secretary.

A case bearing on this came up in Ontario. It was the case of Hays vs. Armstrong. The Ontario Elections Act provided that when a recount was to be taken that the returning officer upon receiving notice of it should hold the boxes until after that should take place. In this respect it was more explicit than the British Columbia act, where no such provision is made. It was proved in the hearing of the case that the notice calling for a recount had been delivered at the house of the returning officer, but that officer had not received it, and had sent the boxes forward. It was held by the court that the returning officer had acted within his right in the matter.

In this instance, with no provision such as that of the Ontario act to call for the holding of the ballot boxes, it would therefore, the attorney-general thinks, be held that the returning officer was clearly within his right in sending the boxes forward.

Hon. Mr. McPhillips says all he wants is the carrying out of the statute. Had the case been reversed and had it been a Liberal who had been declared elected, he might have thrown himself open to a charge of partisanship in his administration had he pursued a course which was incompatible with what was the statutory procedure.

He frankly admits the need of an election act which is consistent in all its parts which is by no means the case with the present one.

A petition has been filed against the return of the four city members, R. L. Drury, W. G. Cameron, J. D. McEwen and Richard Hall. The petition is made on behalf of B. J. Farmer and A. R. Nobis. It includes the usual charges in connection with such matters. D. M. Rogers represents the petitioners.

DEATH IN TORNADO

JUST ONE CURL.

TWO YOUNG LEGISLATORS.

Dr. James Horace King, the Liberal member for Cranbrook, was born at Chipman, N. B., in 1873, and is a son of Senator King. After a public school course he entered the Baptist seminary at St. Maurice, N. B., where he took his course up to matriculation. He entered upon the study of medicine at McGill University, Montreal, graduating in 1896.

After practicing at Andover, N. B., for a time he took a post-graduate course at the New York Polytechnic. He resumed practice again in St. John, N. B., but after a year's time came west in 1898. He was one of the medical staff on the construction of the Crow's Nest Pass railway. After its completion he was made permanent surgeon on the Cranbrook division. For five years past he has devoted his attention to his profession. Up to the campaign, when he was returned, Dr. King has taken no active part in politics, though prominently identified with the Liberal party. He proved himself a ready speaker, and will undoubtedly make himself felt as a valuable member of the legislature.

Wm. Roderick Ross, the Conservative candidate declared elected for Ferme, was born at Fort Chipewyan, Peace River, in the year 1893. He is a son of Donald Ross, chief trader Hudson's Bay Company. He was sent to Winnipeg to receive his education. After attending St. John's college he graduated from that institution in 1897. Mr. Ross then entered upon the study of law, and was called to the bar of Manitoba in 1900. In 1907 he removed to British Columbia, and was called to the bar of this province in that year. He entered upon practice in the Kootenays, and is a member of the firm of Ross & Alexander at Fernie, and of Ross, Alexander & Lowe at Morrissey Mines.

Strangely enough these two, who are among the youngest members of the present legislature, come from adjoining constituencies in the most southern corner of the province, Fernie and Cranbrook. Another interesting connection with these two representatives' return is the fact that they both took up their residence in the province of British Columbia about the same time.

THE CLOSING DAY.

The visiting members of the British Columbia Medical Society this morning took a trip to Esquimalt. They had intended paying a visit to the lepers at Darcy Island, but were unable to secure a tug in time. This afternoon the regular meeting will be continued.

Yesterday afternoon Dr. Ernest A. Hall read a paper on "Reductions from the Study of Pelvic Disease in the Female Instance." The discussion which followed was introduced by Dr. J. G. Davie.

Dr. A. P. Proctor followed with a paper on "Medical Ethics," the introduction of the discussion being in the hands of Dr. J. Gibbs.

Last evening a very enjoyable time was spent at the Grand hotel, where a banquet was given in honor of the gathering of the members.

THEIR BUSY DAY.

The Annual Book of Taxpayers at the City Hall—Pay Day.

A Times representative dropped into the city treasurer's office at the city hall this morning and found that official and his staff "up to their ears" in work. This does not imply that the circumstance is so unusual that it requires the prominence of special mention, but to-day has certain particular features, which should not be neglected. It is the last day on which the payment of taxes will secure a rebate on one-sixth. This accounts for the steady procession towards the office since it was opened in the morning. It will be kept open this afternoon and those who have not paid their taxes should take advantage of the opportunity afforded them.

To-day is also pay day for the corporation employees, owing to the pressure at the treasurer's office by the stream of taxpayers, the salary cheques were handed out at the city department. Naturally this office was visited bright and early by officials and employees of all degrees. Altogether, financially there is considerable doing at the municipal headquarters.

THE RAINIER OF SEATTLE WRECKED

IS ASHORE TWENTY MILES FROM JUNEAU

Crew of Fifteen Men Rescued—Vessel, Being Disabled, Was Driven Ashore in Gale.

Steamer City of Seattle, which is scheduled to leave here for the north in place of the Cottage City tomorrow evening, arrived at Vancouver on her way south last night with news of the wreck of the steam schooner Rainier.

The schooner struck on the shore of Ley Strait, twenty miles west of Juneau on Saturday last, says a dispatch from Vancouver. Her crew of fifteen men in all were saved and taken to Juneau on Sunday by steamer. The latter vessel tried to save the Rainier, but the sea was running too high, and the wrecked boat looked as if it were breaking up. She had been fishing to the westward of Chignoff Island, and had tried to make port ahead of a gale. The sea was so high her steering gear broke and she went on the rocks. She was of 180 tons, and was owned by Chilpeck Bros., Seattle.

The vessel is believed to have been employed by the Puget Sound Packing Company, of Seattle, which owns and operates canneries in the locality mentioned. The Rainier was a vessel something after the type of the Trader of this port, being a wooden craft 81 feet long by 20 feet beam and 9-foot depth of hold. She was built in 1897, and is well known to those familiar with shipping on Puget Sound.

LAID AT REST.

Funeral of the Late R. J. Russell Took Place This Afternoon.

There was a large attendance at the funeral of the late R. J. Russell, which took place this afternoon. At 1:45 o'clock the cortege left the family residence, "Springfield," Victoria West, and wended its way to St. Saviour's church. The auditorium of the church was crowded during the services, which were conducted by the Rev. W. D. Barber. Members of the I. O. O. F. with which Mr. Russell had been prominently identified were present in a body. The services were most impressive. After a number of appropriate hymns, a discourse was delivered by Rev. Mr. Barber, who spoke of the sterling qualities of the late Mr. Russell. His strict integrity and his indomitable determination won him widespread admiration and respect. He had come to Victoria when it was but a Hudson's Bay post, and during his long residence by his industry and integrity had won a high place in the business life of the community. With these qualities there were united a kind disposition and ever-ready generosity.

Leaving the church the cortege wended down Esplanade street, along Work street, across Rock Bay bridge and up Store to Discovery street, along the latter thoroughfare to Government, and along this street to Yates, up the latter to Cook, and along Cook to Fairfield road to the cemetery. While it was passing the corner of Government and Johnson streets a number of the late Mr. Russell's tenants closed their stores as a mark of respect.

At the grave, services were again held. Past Grand Master S. Reid conducted the funeral service of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, assisted by the chaplain, Rev. Mr. Barber.

There were many floral tributes, theasket being covered. Among these was a beautiful large wreath sent by Mrs. Russell's Government street tenants, S. Reid & Co., H. E. Levy, E. Norris, S. Whitaker, Patterson Stone Co., and the Barrett Co.

The following gentlemen acted as pallbearers: J. H. Meldrum, R. W. Fawcett, James Armstrong, Fred. S. Lewis, members of the Columbia lodge, I. O. O. F., and James Muirhead and E. E. Woolton.

CABLES FINANCES.

New Zealand Offers Steamship What For Repair Steamers—Australian Advances.

Address by R. M. S. A. ... of the arrival at Sydney of C. H. Reynolds, manager of the Pacific cable, from Victoria. It is said that the New Zealand government has offered a piece of land and wharf if the cable board makes Auckland the headquarters for their cable repairing steamer Iris.

South Wales, £10,172; Queensland, £10,172; New Zealand, £10,172. The total loss for the two years would, therefore, not fall far short of £10,172, of which the New South Wales share would be £21,304. The interest charge, £77,500, would remain stationary for 50 years, but at the expiration of that period the money borrowed to construct the cable would have been repaid, and the annual charge would be reduced to zero.

Dr. Parkin, C. M. G., is now in Australia, arranging with the various educational bodies the conditions under which the competition for the Rhodes scholarships shall take place. Sir Edmund Barton, ex-Premier of the Commonwealth of Australia, was sworn in as one of the Justices of the High Court of Australia by Lord Tennyson, the Governor-General, on Monday, October 20th. On the following day the newly constituted Federal High Court held its opening session at Melbourne, the ceremony being an impressive one.

INTERESTING ADDRESS BY H. GLENDENNING

At Sooke on Thursday evening last, with John Wallace, of Metehon, in the chair, Henry Glendenning, of Manilla, Ont., delivered a most instructive lecture on "Feeds and Herding" to a large and highly interested audience.

After expressing his pleasure on addressing such a large audience, especially of ladies, the lecturer stated that he would be pleased to answer questions from any persons present, as meetings at which the most questions were asked were the best on account of their tendency to throw the subject out more fully.

As touching the fundamentals of feeding, where with large areas of low-priced open land and cheap labor, it might pay to raise and sell grain directly; on the other hand, with labor and land high and average crops, the prices of grain will not allow of profit. Hence to obtain a large profit through some line of mixed farming, a higher standard of intelligence and a more extensive knowledge was demanded, the keynote being to convert rough feed, roots, fodder, etc., into some higher product at the least possible cost.

If beef or milk were the object in view, the special purpose cow should be aimed at, namely, either one that would produce the best beef or the richest or largest quantity of milk. The secret of these lies in the breeding of a cow, and just here scientific knowledge steps in to show the proportions of each nutrient required to make a good, strong animal.

In this connection there were two points to be considered, 1. Food of maximum value, 2. Food of minimum cost. As with a "strong" horse, a pressure of 35 degrees would just keep the machine in motion, while a pressure of 100 degrees would keep it humming. So with dairying to feed successfully, feed at the top notch.

Then as to variety in feeding, as the various elements composing the body of an animal were contained in different kinds of grain, roots and grasses, a mixture of these gives the best results, and just here scientific knowledge steps in to show the proportions of each nutrient required to make a good, strong animal.

Here, with the aid of charts, the lecturer showed exhaustively that on the ratio borne by the protein to lean meat and blood-producing constituents to the carbohydrates (fat, heat and energy elements), depended mainly the value of an article as an all-round food, though importance must also be attached to the ash, or bone producing elements, in order that the animal may be endowed with a large, strong frame.

As a standard standard food, oats is probably the best, if one grain alone is to be chosen.

After dwelling upon the necessity of pure, plentiful and fairly warm water, and comfortable stabling to help reduce the cost of food, attention was then drawn to the importance of succulence, as exemplified by corn silage, the root crops, and above all the June grasses. The more succulent the food the less demand on the energy of the cow in the process of digestion, letting that go to profit in beef or milk, that might otherwise be taken up by the wear and tear on the nervous system.

Good corn should be of medium height, seven or eight feet, capable of forming good ears and allowed to practically mature. An early variety, such as North Dakota or Longfellow, should not be sown too thick, in squares from 36 to 48 inches apart, and four grains to the hill. It should be cut in the grazed stage, and it is better to take chances of slight frost than cut too early.

To feed grain alone is a serious mistake. It should be mixed with street or pulped roots, so that it may be mixed with as much of the saliva as possible, and pass through all four stomachs while in process of digestion. This would apply to hays as well as chopped grain.

After drawing attention to the fact that corn had been brought to the attention of the committee in the concluding various questions in the concluding remarks of a man who has had great practical experience of the thought he is putting forward, and brought to a close a lecture which from start to finish held the attention and interest of the audience.

THE ALASKAN BOUNDARY

To the Editor: England abandoned General Gordon until it was too late. In every instance where the interests of Canada have conflicted with the United States, England has abandoned Canada, and every Canadian worthy of the name should at least abstain from sneering or pleading the cause of America. Probably I may flatter among my friends more Americans than many British Columbians, but that does not prevent me speaking out plainly with the Americans, when the interests of British Columbia or Canada conflict with those of the United States.

I am afraid some of us need it as if we lived under two governments. When we say, "Those who do, use obedience to both." This was when she wanted California. But one thing is perfectly clear, and that is that the government officials, or those who derive their income from the taxes levied upon the people, are in duty bound to at all times observe silence if their personal views are unfavorable to the competitors of their employers.

In 1848 a bill was before the Senate in the United States for the purpose of raising a loan of sixteen million dollars to furnish war material to secure California from Mexico. One of the strong points of the Americans in those days was that they were in possession of the territory, and they insisted that Mexico should yield the title to them. We were in possession of the two islands which the Lord Chief Justice of England has deliberately given to the United States by a treaty made with his colleagues, although he had agreed with them that the islands belonged to Canada. There is no getting beyond this point. The London Times has had to admit it, and the statement by R. E. Gosnell, who has endeavored to throw more light on questions concerning the "strategic importance" of these islands, has proved beyond all question the strength of my contention that these islands would form a "Gibraltar" for the United States on the Pacific Coast, and would control Dixon entrance, through which all shipping should pass to and from Port Simpson. As Port Simpson probably will be the terminus of the shortest railway system across the American continent, and also the shortest sea route to the Orient, it must necessarily become a port of military and naval importance to the British Empire.

Everybody, I think, would admit that R. E. Gosnell is thoroughly honest in the statement of his opinion, but that is not the question, it is rather the question whether or not the opinion of a man in Mr. Gosnell's position, having a reputation of being conversant with the views of the government of the country, whether or not he is justified in stating: "I tell the honest truth, a careful study of the question so far as it affects Portland cannot lead me to the firm opinion that Canada, instead of maintaining a doubtful claim, secured a decided victory, and has every reason to congratulate herself on the result. There has not been, in my opinion, the sacrifice of a single foot of territory by the British commissioner to placate the United States or for any other reason, and any settlement Canada based on that belief is absolutely unfounded, Canada has gained two large and very important islands as a net result, and lost nothing she was entitled to."

No matter what his private views may be, I think he should not have been approached for any statement on the question, and as a native-born Canadian, I am more than surprised that he should have voiced such an opinion; beside, as far as we have been led to believe, it is not in accordance with the facts. Then, again, he has entirely misunderstood me, because I never suggested anything about the vulnerability of Port Simpson, but the ships passing to and from through a hundred miles of straits, and controlled at a narrow point by the two islands upon which the Americans can erect their "Gibraltar." At this point the strait is only six miles across, or just twice the width of Biscard inlet at the C. P. R. wharf.

Then Mr. Gosnell thinks that we should not deplore the loss of territory to which we were not legally entitled, or to defend by dimmed claims which were indefensible. He says further, "I have stated that I do not think historically considered, the claims of Canada in respect to the strip of territory north of the 49th parallel were at all strong." Even granting that such is the case, it seems to me very remarkable that our government officials should give voice to such opinions. Then he says, as far as he knows, "There is no map in existence drawn since the date of the convention which favors the Canadian claim. On the contrary, every map, British or Russian, American, Canadian, British Columbian and Hudson's Bay Company, including those submitted by the Canadian government at the arbitration, practically sustains the United States claim in that regard."

I have stated previously that I believe Mr. Gosnell to be perfectly honest in his beliefs, but if he is correct, then someone must be at serious fault to allow this dispute to have continued so long between Canada and the United States, and there never should have been any difficulty or any need to have had any convention, or appointment of commissioners, which had put the country to immense expense, but we have the statement of the Times that the two islands, the strategic importance of which I have been dealing with throughout this discussion, were granted to Canada but given back to the United States by the Lord Chief Justice of England. "Then he says, "There was proof that Great Britain, long before the Dominion of Canada had any existence, acknowledged Russia's right to the territory so defined, and the rights Russia possessed the United States succeeded to by purchase." Then, he further says, "certainly Canada was entitled to win on a technicality if she could." Now, if Mr. Gosnell wished to drag our torn garments through the mud, he could not do it more effectively. Now Mr. Gosnell is certainly an authority, notwithstanding he denies that position. Mr. Gosnell is good enough to quote Sir John Macdonald's words as follows: "Thanks to the sturdy persistence of Canadian statesmen Great Britain has given up present Canada a pantomime of diplomatic negotiations with the United States, from which the 'dignity' element of Canada's political interests were conspicuously absent.

I am told by some that a land fort to-day is not of the importance that it was before the great improvements in ordnance. Amos J. Cummings, in speaking in the House of Representatives on the Naval Appropriation Bill, said, "Now I believe in gunboats." Well we shall see whether or not the Americans still believe in gunboats and do not build a fort on these islands, which I contend controls this entrance.

Now another government official, Registrar S. Y. Wootton, attacks me and invites me to tell him what I think of the position and importance of Dundas Island. To be perfectly frank, I am writing to great that Dundas Island should command Dixon entrance, equally with the two islands, Sitikan and Kannaghuis, the only difference being Dundas Island belongs to us and the two islands do not.

I do not know what may be the views of others, but I venture to think that it would have been more correct for the Lord Chief Justice of England to have consulted his colleagues representing Canada. If he had found that they were unwilling to agree with him, to give these two islands to the United States, it would have been better that he should have waived his own views in favor of in deference to the Canadians. Mr. Gosnell says he is a native born Canadian. I was an Englishman until I came in early days to British Columbia, since when I have done everything I possibly could to see that my children are British Columbians, if I am not a native born child of the province.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Governor Toole, of Montana, yesterday received a committee representing the Mill and Smelter Men's Union at Anaconda. The committee presented a resolution passed by the union, in which the governor was asked to call an extra session of the legislature in the hope that the situation at Butte and Anaconda might be relieved, and the mines of the Anaconda Copper Company started up. The governor has not yet decided the question. He will leave Butte to take part in the conference with Jas. J. Hill, Senator Paris Gibson, Senator W. A. Clark and Congressman Dixon.

Henry Mortimer Durand, recently appointed British ambassador to the United States, was asked by a correspondent of the Associated Press what line of policy he would follow, and answered: "I shall follow the line laid down by the foreign office and British interests. The relations between the United States and Great Britain are most cordial, and I personally am convinced that Great Britain will use every caution against friction, as made evident by the submission of the Alaskan question to arbitration. The political horizon, therefore, being cloudless, I imagine my part at Washington will be social rather than diplomatic."

THE PREMIER'S POSITION.

In the course of an article containing some unique arguments, based on the Nelson incident, the Colonist this morning gives another of those illustrations of its own "infinite variety" of which the public has had such a surfeit.

Almost at the outset of the matter, the Times announced that Mr. Houston was down seeking, nay, demanding a portfolio. This was ponderously rejected as untrue by the government paper.

Then we declared that he had been turned down by the Premier, and had gone home rowing vengeance. This was categorically denied by the morning paper, which within a few hours was obliged to admit unblushingly that as usual it had been entirely astray in its statements and absolutely ignorant as usual of the facts.

The same course is being repeated in regard to the responsibility for otherwise of the Premier for the Governor's act. The Times said at the outset that by remaining in office, the Premier accepted responsibility for the Governor's act.

"But we may say this, that an adviser of the Crown is not responsible for action taken by the Crown against his advice in a matter affecting the personality of the Cabinet."

By Saturday (to-day) the journal had made such marked progress in the constitutional primaries that it is able to deliver itself of the following: "If the Crown on personal grounds rejects that member, the Premier certainly takes the responsibility of that rejection to the country."

This is gratifying progress for three days, even though the statement is accompanied by a qualification which lends a spice of humor to the article. This qualification is as follows: "He (the Premier) should not be held responsible by the member himself because he fails to resign over it. He has the government and the party to consider."

This in a nutshell is the epitome of Tory doctrine, which in practice means power at any price, or at any sacrifice of principle. If consideration for the government and the party constitutes a reason for failing to resign when the Premier's advice is rejected, where shall the line be drawn? To what limits may he not push the argument? The Crown may ignore his advice on the most weighty questions of state, but such a precedent will keep the Premier anchored as firmly to office and its emoluments, as the traditional pup to a roset.

It seems to us that the great difficulty lies in the fact that the Premier has considered himself, his government and the party, which refuses to acknowledge his leadership, and has failed utterly to consider the representative of the Crown, Surely His Honor is entitled to some consideration.

THE NELSON INCIDENT.

We have refrained hitherto from commenting upon the Nelson meeting, and the resolutions which were passed there, because we believe that the good people of that city will, when the first impulse of resentment has passed, regret their attitude to His Honor the Lieut. Governor. We submit that the people of Nelson, like the member for Nelson, acted most improperly in dragging His Honor's name into a discussion which had to do only with those members of our constitutional government, who have a direct mandate from, and are directly responsible to, the people.

Senator Lodge and Turner, as United States commissioners, and a speedy protest from Canada. Here we find extensions from the "dispatches," made apparently out of consideration for the high susceptibilities of the British government, and indicated by asterisks.

It is some satisfaction to learn that the resolution did not pass, as represented in the government organ, by an overwhelming, but by a very bare majority. Mr. Houston's speech, from the extracts which we published yesterday, was evidently inflammatory in character, and misled some of his auditors, the same and reasonable presentation of the whole position by Messrs. Taylor and Deane, being naturally represented as a partisan settlement, and not what it actually was, unanswerable fact.

HOW CANADA WAS DUPED.

American journals and some Canadian take very high ground upon the decision of the Alaska boundary tribunal. Those who question the justice of the verdict are accused of raising suspicions which may have a serious effect upon the public mind and may preclude the possibility of an amicable adjustment of difficulties which are sure to arise in the future.

But, as a matter of fact, the Alaska boundary tribunal was not a court of arbitration at all. Canadians wanted the case submitted to an impartial tribunal of arbitration; the correspondence laid before parliament proves how completely they were outwitted, with the connivance, it must be confessed, of the British government.

The Canadian ministers expressed themselves favorable to the scheme if all aspects of the case were laid before the tribunal. Having thus allured them into negotiations, the pushful head of the colonial office goes a step further and presumes that in the event of the majority of the tribunal agreeing in their answers to the reference submitted, the decision would be accepted as final.

The Canadian ministers answered warily that before agreeing to this, they would require to see the exact text of the submissions; and then follows correspondence of which the outcome was the treaty whose first article stipulated for six impartial judges of repute, each of whom shall first subscribe an oath that he will impartially consider the arguments and evidence presented to the tribunal and decide therefrom according to his true judgment.

Before the treaty was framed, however, there were illuminating negotiations as to the character of the tribunal. Thus we find Lord Minto on January 12th telegraphing to the colonial office that the Canadian government was still pressing to have an independent tribunal, and hoping that another effort would be made to have the question adjudicated upon submitted either to a board of arbitrators consisting of independent jurists not subjects of either state, or to the Hague tribunal.

A few days later the British ambassador at Washington, Sir Michael Herbert, who died a few weeks ago, telegraphed Secretary Hay's intimation that he could only repeat "what he had so often said before, that the form of arbitration was the only one acceptable to the president and that a treaty involving the submission of the question to foreign arbitration or to the Hague tribunal would stand no chance of ratification by the United States senate."

This surely was a strange attitude for a country that was conscious of the strength of its case to take. The correspondence, if it establishes one fact more than another, shows that the American government was fawning a settlement, not a just and honorable adjustment of the dispute, but one in which they would score a victory regardless of whether their triumph was based upon justice or not.

That the Canadian government was careful of the country's interests is apparent, but it is not less clear that they were seeking only for what was right. Thus they declare in one part that they would not entertain a favorable idea of a judicial tribunal "unless the terms of reference were so framed as to include all aspects of the question."

An aspect of the question which involved a decision that left a large part of the boundary undefined and subject to future negotiation, lest by some mischance Canada might discover an easy entrance to gold-bearing territory, was certainly never contemplated.

In due time after the drawing up of the treaty, there came the announcement of the selection of Secretary Root, and

Senator Lodge and Turner, as United States commissioners, and a speedy protest from Canada. Here we find extensions from the "dispatches," made apparently out of consideration for the high susceptibilities of the British government, and indicated by asterisks.

It is some satisfaction to learn that the resolution did not pass, as represented in the government organ, by an overwhelming, but by a very bare majority. Mr. Houston's speech, from the extracts which we published yesterday, was evidently inflammatory in character, and misled some of his auditors, the same and reasonable presentation of the whole position by Messrs. Taylor and Deane, being naturally represented as a partisan settlement, and not what it actually was, unanswerable fact.

How straightforward and direct the plan suggested by Canada in the light of all the tortuous developments and the trickery that it is nothing else, on the other side! The words now seem almost pathetic, and yet how dignified: "In the hope that judges of the higher courts of the United States would be appointed as American commissioners, my ministers also agree that the British commissioners should be judges of the highest standing." Then again: "My ministers most strongly represent that this consideration having been material in causing their assent to the treaty, should be made good."

The reply of Lord Goslow, Mr. Chamberlain's under-secretary, was a watery dispatch about the situation being full of difficulty, about its being useless to press the United States government to withdraw the names, and a confident hope that British and Canadian interests would not be sacrificed.

The Canadian government protested once more against the appointment to the tribunal by the United States government of gentlemen who were not judges and whose names left no room for the expectation of a judicial consideration of the question, and even went so far as to suggest no further participation in the proceedings; but in the meantime, without waiting for any further consent on Canada's part, there was an exchange of ratifications at Washington and the treaty, of whose outcome we have had such unpleasant evidence during the last few days, became an effective instrument.

It was a wise precaution of the Colonist to hide away in an obscure paragraph the Premier's statement at last night's meeting of the two Conservatives that the election of the four local members is to be protested. Dark references were made by the Premier to "illegal acts," but the indefiniteness of his allusions leads to the belief that he knows how hopeless such an appeal would be. There probably never was an election in this city conducted on such absolutely fair lines, and if an appeal is taken it will certainly not be from any hope of success, but merely to provide convenient material with which to attempt to arrange a saw-off.

Mr. Gifford has announced his intention of assuming the post of provincial secretary. This may or may not be true, but if he does it will but demonstrate how sincere the Premier was in his statement to the Conservative club last night that the interests of Vancouver Island were absolutely safe in his possession. He evidently regards them as so safe there, that he will not allow an Island man the custody of them, and a portfolio at the same time.

Hon. Mr. Green spoke with deep feeling when he declared that "lack of courage was not the only factor in the recent defeat." He will find that John Houston and his "living gods" will have some part in the greater defeat which awaits him in a few weeks.

TO KNOW THE JOY OF LIVING Use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets—They Will Make You Eat Three Square Meals a Day and Enjoy Them—They Cure All Stomach Ills.

Alphonse Caron, of Montigny, Que., says: "I know Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets as the best thing for Dyspepsia. Every morning suffering from this terrible malady ought to use them as I have and he would be satisfied."

Briston, Que., Oct. 20. (Special.)—That a remedy that will cure Gravel will easily overcome the milder forms of urinary complaint is readily admitted and there are many living proofs that Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure Gravel. One of the proofs is Mr. Reuben Draper, of this place. He kept in a bottle the stones he passed after a treatment of Dodd's Kidney Pills and makes the following statement concerning them:
"About three years ago I was taken ill with what I thought was Gravel. I was suffering great pain so I sent for a doctor who helped me some but did not cure me. Shortly after the pain came back and I tried another doctor with the same result, only I was getting weaker all the time.
"Then a man told me Dodd's Kidney Pills had cured his mother, so I got a box and started to take them. In one week I passed a stone as large as a small bean and four days later another as large as a grain of barley. That is two years ago, and I have had no trouble since."
The urinary organs are the first to feel the effects of Kidney Disease. At the first sign of trouble there, take Dodd's Kidney Pills and you need never fear Bright's Disease.

REUBEN DRAPER'S GRAVEL CURED BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Briston, Que., Oct. 20. (Special.)—That a remedy that will cure Gravel will easily overcome the milder forms of urinary complaint is readily admitted and there are many living proofs that Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure Gravel. One of the proofs is Mr. Reuben Draper, of this place. He kept in a bottle the stones he passed after a treatment of Dodd's Kidney Pills and makes the following statement concerning them:
"About three years ago I was taken ill with what I thought was Gravel. I was suffering great pain so I sent for a doctor who helped me some but did not cure me. Shortly after the pain came back and I tried another doctor with the same result, only I was getting weaker all the time.
"Then a man told me Dodd's Kidney Pills had cured his mother, so I got a box and started to take them. In one week I passed a stone as large as a small bean and four days later another as large as a grain of barley. That is two years ago, and I have had no trouble since."
The urinary organs are the first to feel the effects of Kidney Disease. At the first sign of trouble there, take Dodd's Kidney Pills and you need never fear Bright's Disease.

HOW HARMSWORTH SUPPLIES A NEED

IN SHOWING ENGLAND CANADIAN SENTIMENT

He Has Sent Out One of His Ablest Journalists—Mr. Wallace's Career.

The marvellous success of Alfred Harmsworth, who has been designated the Napoleon of Journalism, is one of the most striking features of the present day. Edgar Wallace, one of the great publisher's special writers, who was in Victoria Thursday and yesterday, in commenting on what the proprietor of the London Daily Mail has accomplished, attributed it to his promptitude in "supplying a need." In other words he is quick to grasp an opportunity and appearing in its exploitation.

The presence of Mr. Wallace in Canada just now is a powerful illustration of this highly developed faculty of Mr. Harmsworth's and the practical methods he employs. He recognizes that there is a "need to be supplied," the instruction of the British people as to their colony across the Atlantic, and he has dispatched one of his most observant, capable men to investigate on their behalf and impart the knowledge he acquires. In conversation with a Times representative the other day Mr. Wallace remarked that his average British was sadly ignorant of Canada generally and Canadian sentiment in particular. The much-exaggerated speech of the ex-chancellor of the exchequer, Mr. Ritchie, he characterized as ridiculous, and two of his letters to the Mail have as subjects the very unfortunate utterances of the British statesman in regard to Canada.

It has not taken Mr. Wallace long to sound Canadian sentiment on important questions affecting Canada, and the Mail and its subsidiary publications should give their ten million constituents an accurate picture of the attitude of the people not only with regard to Mr. Chamberlain's fiscal plan, but on the Alaska boundary decision, the country's relations with the Merchant navy, and from this viewpoint and those with other states.

From war correspondence to portrayals of public sentiment on fiscal matters and questions of Imperial policy is certainly a far cry, but Mr. Wallace is evidently well fitted for his task or Mr. Harmsworth would not have delegated it to him. He is prominent among that coterie of able journalists who have contributed so materially to the prestige enjoyed by the great London daily, the band of writers which boasted a Strens who untimely death was as deeply regretted in Victoria as in any outpost of the Empire. The eminence that Mr. Wallace has achieved is not due to powerful "outside" influences. Ability, industry and enterprise were the factors in his success.

To the Times he said he left school at eleven years of age, and a couple of years later was selling papers in London for the big news agency conducted by W. H. Smith & Co. Even in extreme youth Mr. Wallace appreciated the force of the aphorism that "variety is the spice of life," because his next billet was as cabin boy on a schooner. Subsequently he became a purser on a coastwise steamer running from London, and finally at the age of seventeen he landed in the army. He participated in the Malakka campaign, and afterwards was attached to a hospital at Simonstown, where as a member of the medical corps he earned the thanks of the admiralty for nursing those who came from the Boer expedition.

But fortune never intended that Mr. Wallace should remain a soldier, although his experience in the army and on active service must have proven of great value in his subsequent occupation. He drifted into newspaper work quite naturally, an indication of aptitude and he became the field correspondent of Reuters' news collecting association. He then took up the war correspondence of the London Daily News. During these commissions he accompanied the columns of that dashing cavalry leader Sir John French, General Methuen and Sir Frederick Carrington in the latter's movement through Bushmanland. His connection with the London Mail came about in a rather singular manner. He had been representing the London News in the field, and when the British troops reached the Boer capital he sent what he expected would be his last letter, as it was generally believed that the occupation of Pretoria meant the termination of the war.

This correspondence was dispatched via Capetown, where it was typewritten, strangely enough, however, a mistake was made in the address, and the letter went to the London Daily Mail. Mr. Wallace followed it to England, and discovered it when looking up the Mail files. Mr. Harmsworth liked the style, and the matter, and added the writer to his staff. Sharing the popular belief that the war was over he duped Mr. Wallace to write six letters on "South Africa after the war." When the correspondent returned to Pretoria he found that the Boers were still very much alive, so he took to the field.

Quite a number of signal exploits of journalism may be credited to Mr. Wallace. Prominent among these was the first announcement of the devaluation of paper. Newspapermen can well appreciate the value of such a scoop. The vigilant censor was deluded by the adoption of a code apropos of commensurate matters. One of his messages to the Mail was "Referring to the sale of the Gold Farm, Paxfontein, all parties necessary to the contract are now in Pretoria, where Alfred has gone to get bottom prices." The drift of this can be understood easily enough now, but at that time it proved too cryptic for the censor, and the Mail made an exclusive announcement which brought relief to the whole Empire.

If he desired Mr. Wallace could pen an interesting series of reminiscences on celebrities he has interviewed. The list

INVESTIGATION OF WATERFRONT ROW

TOOK UP AFTERNOON IN THE POLICE COURT

Owner of Schooner Enterprise Defendant—Evidence Taken Yesterday—To-day's Happenings.

There was an all afternoon session of the police court yesterday. The cause was a waterfront row, and from 2 o'clock until 6 the court was busy investigating what was apparently a very lively affair. It occurred at Spratt's wharf between 10 and 11 o'clock yesterday morning, and the principals were John Clark, owner of the schooner Enterprise, and John Thursden, a sailor who was employed on board the schooner last week. The prosecution was conducted by Detective Sergeant Palmer, while the accused, Mr. Clark, was defended by Mr. Twigg, of Eberts & Tallor's office.

According to the story of the complainant, John Thursden, he went down to the Enterprise to see the captain about some money that was coming to him for last week's work. He boarded the schooner, and was standing on the stern talking to the defendant's son when Clark, the elder, said to him: "You have served me a fine trick. You didn't come and finish that salt you were working on." Thursden said he would not work for two dollars a day. The other replied that he would make it up for him this week, but Thursden insisted that he would not work for that sum. Clark retorted: "You have done it before," and Thursden denied it. The accused, Thursden alleges, then called him a liar with a couple of fancy adjectives, and the informant returned the charge. He then walked off the schooner and Clark followed. The defendant, Thursden said, struck him in the face. They clinched and fell together. Clark, the sailor claims, rose to his feet and kicked him (Thursden) while he was lying on the wharf. The crew of the schooner hastened ashore and separated them. He didn't strike Clark, and he did not ask the latter for money when he boarded the schooner.

Charles Christensen, a sailor who accompanied Thursden, gave evidence substantiating the same. In one particular he disagreed with the previous witness, and that was that Thursden had asked the captain for the money owing him. He also said the complainant had a couple of drinks in him at the time.

Dr. Hart, who was also examined, stated that Thursden came to his office for treatment. His eyes were blacked, and his face more or less scratched. There was a wound over the lower margin of the right orbit, which required half a dozen stitches. It could have been caused by a severe blow by a blunt instrument or a man's fist or a kick. It was not necessarily dangerous. The case was continued until 9 o'clock when an adjournment was taken in order that members of the crew who witnessed the affair might be examined.

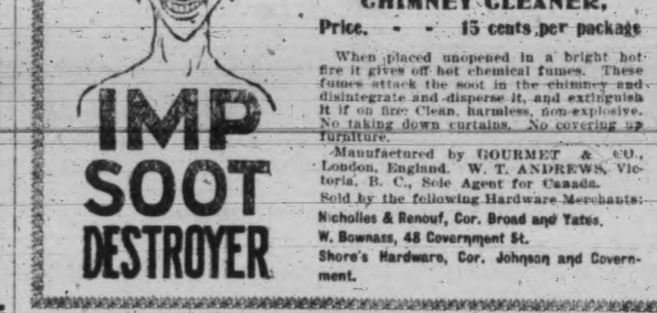

A trio of aborigines appeared before the magistrate this morning, charged with drunkenness. One was Bob, a Beechy Bay Indian, who was fined $5 and $1 costs or ten days imprisonment. The other was Doctor Dick, a Victoria braxe, who was fined a like amount for a similar offence, while the third was none other than the notorious Clevis Jimmy, who drank not wisely, but too well on the impulse of the moment, and a week in duration. This time Jimmy declined to accept of the hospitality of the jail authorities, for he paid his fine of $5, and is now at liberty.

A meeting of the executive of the B. C. Agricultural Association was held last evening when arrangements were made towards getting things in order for another meeting to be held shortly when a complete statement of the accounts in connection with the recent exhibition will be submitted.

CAESAR ATTELL WINS THE FIGHT

HE ADDS KID KRANT TO HIS VANQUISHED

Rugby Season Opens With a Match Between Victoria and United Service

Last night's glove contest between Caesar Attell and Kid Krant, of Seattle, was one of the most exciting which has been seen here. It resulted in a decision being given in favor of Attell. This plucky fighter never showed any signs of being tired, and did not flinch at the blows of his opponent.

Both men went into the contest apparently realizing that he had a hard night's work ahead of him, as the opening round was a very close one, and the two men were evenly matched. Attell, who was somewhat heavier, was more deliberate in his work. Krant was exceedingly quick and did some excellent work. The two men gave a splendid exhibition.

With the paragon in the possession of the fifth round four men can shoot at a target. They have not yet begun. As this is the first time the gallery range has been used, last night's shooting was necessarily more of an exhibition than a contest. Quarter Master Sgt. Winslow and Sgt. Claven were in charge. The indoor shooting is not only interesting for spectators and those participating, but it is highly instructive. The range is about 25 yards, but accurate shooting is not as easy as it appears. The targets are proportionately small, and it requires good aim, a steady arm, besides some luck, to make a bullseye.

With the second round, Krant opened with the display of a determination to bring the battle to a close as quickly as possible. Several times he tried to knock Attell out of the ring, but he was not successful. Attell, however, was very careful and did not allow himself to be knocked down. He was a remarkably vigorous one, and brought forth the style of fighting which is usually seen in the ring. Krant, on the other hand, was a heavy swing, would attempt to catch his opponent's head in the jaws of his arms, and would frequently attempt to knock Attell out of the ring. Attell, in the majority of cases, succeeded in driving his opponent to the ropes, but the Seattle fighter was kindly consoled to get as instructed.

From that on to the fifth or sixth round the fighting on both sides was waged with the greatest vigor. It was impossible for the men to keep the pace, however, and several rounds followed in which both were well satisfied to take a comparatively easy rest. After resting their strength for a few minutes, the men again attempted to get a lead in and deliver a knock-out blow. Though without success.

In the third round Attell received a blow over his left eye which interfered with his sight somewhat until the end of the round and made him more ready to take the blows of the Seattle fighter. Krant, however, gave more attention to getting in his upper cut, which Attell, however, cut off very well without receiving any serious punishment. The fourth and fifth rounds were also characterized by aggressive work on the part of Krant. At the opening of the sixth round, however, Attell was very bright for the Seattle man.

With the sixth round, however, Attell's wonderful recuperative power was shown. Krant attempted again to rush matters. He succeeded in inflicting considerable punishment, but Attell, before the round advanced far, began to take the aggressive again. He followed Krant well up and showered the blows upon him. Finally the Seattle man was dropped, and Attell took no further chances, however, and came out of the round decidedly better than his opponent.

In the seventh round Attell was the aggressor, and again in the eighth. The fight, however, was then going considerably slower, and continued so up to the end of the round, when both men again in strength.

From that on the rounds varied little until the last two rounds. Krant attempted to rush matters, but he was unable to keep it up, and in many cases he was satisfied to defend himself for the last three rounds. Attell, however, took no chances, but steadily exhausted his opponent.

At the opening of the ninth round, Krant made a determined effort to do his work. He was well met by Attell, who quickly from the past in aggressive work out of the hands of the Seattle man, and proceeded to inflict punishment by upper cuts aimed in the direction of Krant's face. Krant quickly recovered, however, and worked hard to terminate the fight. He hit a few blows, but they lacked power. Then Attell again followed Krant about the ring, showering blows upon him. With the close of the round it was quite evident that it was Attell's victory.

With the opening of the tenth round both men went bravely to work. For a little time it fluctuated, but Krant early showed he had reserve force. He went down under Attell's onslaught, but quickly regained his feet. He, however, with difficulty kept up before Attell's blows until the end of the round, when he was again seen defending himself.

The referee immediately gave the decision in favor of Caesar Attell by the satisfaction of the judges.

The attendance was excellent. There were a large number of Seattle admirers of Kid Krant present. The fight was remarkably fair, neither of the men attempting any dirty work, but keeping well within the rules.

A preliminary bout was put on between

With the paragon in the possession of the fifth round four men can shoot at a target. They have not yet begun. As this is the first time the gallery range has been used, last night's shooting was necessarily more of an exhibition than a contest. Quarter Master Sgt. Winslow and Sgt. Claven were in charge. The indoor shooting is not only interesting for spectators and those participating, but it is highly instructive. The range is about 25 yards, but accurate shooting is not as easy as it appears. The targets are proportionately small, and it requires good aim, a steady arm, besides some luck, to make a bullseye.

GALLERY SHOOTING.
 Rifle shooting was indulged in by a number of the younger shots of the regiment last evening. A range had been carefully prepared in the drill hall, and some instructive gallery practice was given. CELLULOID STARCH Never Sticks Requires no boiling

Attention is called to the danger of constantly "heading" the ball at football by the news that, Sam Nicholls, the famous centre forward for West Bromwich Albion, and who was one of the finest players the Black Country has produced, lies in a serious condition in the Queen's hospital, Birmingham.

A thief who was caught robbing the home of his stepmother at Cologne was chased through the streets by the police. He took refuge in the Roman Catholic church of St. Marins, claiming sanctuary under medieval law. The police found him kneeling before the altar, with his hands crossed upon his bosom. They refused, however, to recognize the claim of sanctuary, and arrested the man.

THAT "AMBERGRIS." Covered Substance Proved by Analysis to Be Only Animal Fat. Under the heading "Not Ambergris, But Animal Fat," the Seattle Post-Intelligencer says: "Animal fat of little or no commercial value" is the verdict of two government chemists detailed to make an analysis of eighty pounds of curious looking substance which was found aboard a nameless gasoline launch owned by Charles Todd, and which local druggists and chemists pronounced to be ambergris. Had it been ambergris, as Todd and the chemists believed, it would have been worth from $40,000 to $70,000. Customs officers seized the launch late in August for illegally landing in this port—that is, having failed to report entry at the custom house. Under the law any vessel so entering is not only subject to confiscation, but her cargo is also liable to seizure. Hence the customs inspectors not only seized the launch, but the mysterious looking cargo as well. Then they set about an investigation to determine the character of the cargo, its value, etc.

After referring to the manner in which the "ambergris" had been discovered in Victoria and smuggled across the Strait—facts already published in the Times—and to the arrival of Capt. Grant and other Victorians in Seattle to claim the supposed treasure, the Post-Intelligencer says: "Todd explained that he had come into this port under the impression that he was not required to enter, as his craft was merely a launch less than twenty-five feet long. The case was submitted to the department, and upon his giving the necessary bond the launch was restored to him. Meanwhile samples of the 'ambergris' were forwarded for scientific analysis by the government's chemists, one to San Francisco and the other to Boston. Both chemists, as stated, pronounced the substance seized simply animal fat, carrying little or no commercial value. 'The Victorians, probably, will make no further effort to secure the 'ambergris'."

The practice of eating arsenic is very prevalent among the peasantry of the mountainous districts of Austria, Hungary and France. We are glad that this poison enables them to declare with ease heights which they could only otherwise climb with great distress to the chest.

Wethey's Mince Meat. Perfect cleanliness is one of the strongest rules in our kitchens. We are proud of the manner in which it is carried out. When the dairy bricks of Wethey's Mince Meat come from our kitchens they are wrapped in paraffine paper and each placed in a box. This keeps the goodness in and all foreign substances out. This is one of the reasons why particular people insist on Wethey's Mince Meat. "One try satisfies".

It is carefully produced, well printed and well illustrated. There has never been anything in Canada to equal it. The November number opens a new volume. This is a good time to subscribe. Smugglers Caught on Lopez Island, Where Their Sloop Was Wrecked.

Through the wrecking of their sloop on Lopez island on Thursday morning two smugglers believed to have been operating from Victoria have been apprehended, together with fourteen Chinese.

Referring to the arrest, a Port Townsend dispatch of Thursday says: "The men arrested are Harry Thomas and Fred Addison, strangers in this section, but their guilt is apparent, for they were caught red-handed with the contrabands in a secret cove on San Juan island, whither they had taken their living cargo in a sloop to await darkness before resuming the trip to some 'secret port,' where the Chinese would have been dumped ashore to scatter over the country.

USEFUL ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Cultivate a fuller acquaintance with Peppin's Nervine, which cures most of the troubles common to children. For sore throat, rub Nervine over the chest and throat. To break up a cold administer ten drops in hot water at bedtime. For indigestion, cramps, stomach ache, biliousness, there is no remedy so prompt as Nervine, which is as good as the doctor for ordinary life. Children like Peppin's Nervine because it makes a pleasant invigorating drink in sweetened water. Older folks like it because it is an honest, reliable remedy for all pain, internal and external. Send every where in large 25c bottles. Try Nervine yourself.

The Sunday meetings at the Y. M. C. A. are proving a deserving attraction to the many men who have no other place to spend the afternoon, and may well be designated a pleasant Sunday hour. The services are void of all formality, and couple a healthy influence with a free and easy flow, which appeals to the average man. From 3 to 3:45 is spent discussing the every day problems of young men, under the leadership of the general secretary, and at 4 p. m. the general meeting for men is held. Tomorrow at 9:20 a class will hold its first session in the study of the Proverbs. At 4 p. m. a special open meeting will be held addressed by Bishop Hilbery. The general terminal choir will render a good programme of music.

INBOUND LINERS FROM THE ORIENT

STEAMERS WITH BIG FREIGHTS FOR HERE

Calchas Bringing Over One Thousand Tons for Victoria and Esquimaux—The Wempe Bros.

The C. P. R. steamship Tartar reached the outer wharf from Japan and China this morning, having encountered adverse winds during the greater part of her voyage across the Pacific. She brought 2,000 tons of cargo, including a big consignment of silk for New York, six saloon passengers and 128 Chinese, of whom 11 were landed here.

Following the Tartar across the Pacific en route to this port are several big liners which should reach port next week. Included among the number is the 6,735-ton steamship Calchas, which is bringing for Victoria over 1,000 tons of freight. Among this cargo are considerable quantities of goods for Esquimaux. When all has been landed the steamer will receive shipment at the outer wharf. This is now arriving from the Mainland. The Calchas is expected on the 3rd of the month. On the previous day the Victoria, of the Great Northern line, will be due to arrive with something like 250 tons for this city, in addition to a number of passengers. On the 4th the Kaga Maru should arrive with 1,000 tons and 100 passengers. The Tose Maru, outward bound for the Orient, will sail on the 3rd. The R. M. S. Empress of Japan is scheduled to sail on Monday.

STRANDING OF WEMPE BROS.

Capt. Aspe and crew of the wrecked schooner Wempe Bros. has reached Port Townsend on the tug Wanderer. From the wrecked schooner the captain and crew were rescued by the tug Wanderer. The schooner was wrecked on Lopez Island. The Wempe Bros. made the Cape at midnight on Tuesday and the southerly wind carried the schooner toward the Vancouver Island shore. When the proximity of the shore lines became evident, both anchors were put out but they did not hold immediately. In the meantime the vessel, driven by the wind and tide's dragged to the rocks, the waves breaking over her at times. The boats were made ready and when it was seen that nothing could be done toward saving the vessel the captain and crew set off.

It was 5 a. m. when the vessel first struck and a quarter of an hour later all hands abandoned the craft, striking out into the open and remaining there, until daylight, when a star was made for Neah Bay. The tug Wanderer was towing the schooner Melrose to sea at the time, and on being flagged from Tatosau headed back for Neah Bay, picking up the shipwrecked ones on route, and then steaming for the scene of disaster. Capt. Aspe had a share in the ownership of the vessel, and it is said pays $5,000 by the wreck.

A NEW SLIP.

The management of the Victoria Machinery Depot will commence work again within the next few days on the machine slip, which they purpose establishing on the site adjoining the works. Considerable excavating has already been done on the property, but there has yet to be carried out before the ways have been laid down. The large front has been deepened to a depth about sufficient for the purposes required, and the work, when started again, will be carried through to completion. The plant, which the company contemplate installing has been heretofore described. It is calculated that it will accommodate a 3,000-ton vessel.

MARINE NOTES.

The first of the whaling barques to arrive at San Francisco this fall, the Charles W. Morgan, brought 1,750 barrels of sperm oil. The Morgan reports that on July 20th, at Hakodate, Japan, the others of the sperm fleet had the following catches: Andrew Hicks, 700 barrels; California, 450 barrels of sperm oil and one right whale; Alex Knowles, 650 barrels of sperm oil, and Wanderer, 20 barrels of sperm oil. Some of these vessels are known to have greatly increased their catch since that time.

Steamer Anne will arrive here from the north tomorrow. She left Skagway on Wednesday last with 70 odd passengers.

The French ship Andre Theodor has been chartered to load lumber at the Hastings mill for the Pacific Kingdom.

This event is looked forward to by many, and a large number are expected to attend from Victoria, Mission, Lewis, Okanagan, Palmer, Thurston, Dunbar, and Roberts are on the reception committee.

A piece of the bridge shaft fell off yesterday afternoon and caused a temporary cessation of operations. Repairs were carried on this morning and on Monday next work will be resumed in full blast. The new agitator made at the Victoria Machine Depot was installed yesterday morning and operated splendidly. It is a great improvement on the old agitator, and will not clog in the day.

The concert in St. James' hall on Tuesday last was given before a highly appreciative audience. The playing of Sydney Tabou on both piano and violin was much enjoyed, while Hugh Kennedy fulfilled all expectations, and was cheered several times, giving as the encore the old favorite "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes." His voice and condition of his songs were much admired. "Honor and Arms" being worthy of special note. Miss Underhill gave, with her usual power, a new selection called "The Children of the Bonnet House."
